Dear Parents, Carers and Students,

I am looking forward to my five week Principal role at St Joseph's, Hindmarsh, in lieu of Maria enjoying a well-deserved holiday. I am also looking forward to meeting parents of the school community, and getting to know the staff and students during this time.

OFFICIAL BLESSING AND OPENING

Last Tuesday, I was privileged to attend the Official Blessing and Opening of the MacKillop Centre of Learning. Congratulations to the staff, students and Parents and Friends members, who contributed in making this occasion, a memorable event. Maria D'Aloia has sent out a letter of recognition and gratitude through SeeSaw. This new facility, also encompassing the original 90 year old building, reflects the philosophy of the Reggio Emilia teaching and learning principles. These contemporary learning spaces encourage student collaboration and opportunity to explore learning through a variety of mediums.

BOOKWEEK PARADE

Last Friday, Book Week culminated in the Book Week Parade. The theme, Reading is my Secret Power, provided scope for students and staff to dress in amazing, creative costumes. We can never underestimate the 'power' of reading!

God Bless

ALTAR SERVERS

Any student who has completed the School/Parish Sacrament Program (Reconciliation, Confirmation, Eucharist) is invited to train to become an altar server for weekend and school Masses. Altar serving is another way to minister within our Parish. A member of the Hindmarsh Parish will train and prepare students. Please return the following reply slip if you would like more information about becoming an altar server.

Let us show love in our acts, bearing with one another. Forgiving and forgetting.

(Mary MacKillop, 1890). God Bless, Helen Clark APRIM

Kind Regards,

What is happening in the Preschool?

Each year in August, schools and public libraries from all over Australia spend a week celebrating books and Australian authors and illustrators. Classroom teachers and librarians develop activities and tell stories to highlight the importance of reading. We had fun participating in the Book Week Parade, shared books from home and read stories to each other.

What is happening in the Preschool?

The children have begun to make Eat a Rainbow posters depicting healthy fruits and vegetables.

This week our chefs used green apples, yoghurt and a dash of cinnamon to make apple cakes for afternoon tea.

Emilia's Dad Craig has kindly loaned us his egg incubator. We are hoping that our fertilised eggs will hatch in about three weeks.

Incubating chicken eggs is a 21-day process and requires an egg incubator to help control temperature, humidity and egg turning.

Our investigations of the life cycle of a chicken will allow the children to observe, ask questions, predict and communicate their ideas.

What is happening in the Preschool?

Our Monday workshop with Dina and Lauren from Bunnings was great. They generously donated plants and bulbs that the children helped to pot and place in our garden. The hessian caterpillars will begin to sprout lawn seed when placed in a sunny spot and kept moist. Something fun to enjoy at home!

Young children are natural scientists. They are keen to explore, investigate and learn about living things. Caring for living things in our environment helps to promote in children respect and a sense of connection with their world.

Leaving your fathering mark

by Michael Grose

Currently, there's a strong tendency to view successful fathering through the lens of skills and knowledge acquisition. That is, to raise kids today effective fathers, like mothers, need to keep building their skill sets (What's the most appropriate way to manage kids today?) and their knowledge (What's the latest research about the impact of digital technology on children?). Staying one step ahead can be exhausting and make a man feel inadequate if he can't keep up.

Another way to look at fathering is through the generative parenting lens. That is, fathering is an activity that's rooted in a man's biology in much the same way that mothering is an instinctive activity. If the mothering instinct is to nurture and protect children, a father's instinct is to teach and develop his children's skills and knowledge so they can thrive long after the time he's left this world.

The generative fathering notion developed by researchers Dollahite, Hawken and Brotherson explains why many men will turn a simple game they have with their children into a lesson into how to hold a ball; defeat that opponent or stand firm in the face of fear. Father-son relationships can be scuppered by this well-intentioned, but oft mistimed 'you can always get better' attitude.

Generative fathers tend to look long term when they raise their kids. Quintessentially, generative fathers work hard to be good men and good citizens. Love, availability and character become their fathering stock in trade.

Generative fathers keep pace with their children's development adjusting their role at different stages. For instance, during a child's latency (primary school years) they focus on recreational work and so they help develop children's interests and competencies through sport, hobbies and leisure activities. The task for generative fathers of early adolescents is to help their children develop strong values and inner beliefs. This spiritual work (not necessarily in a religious sense) helps young people develop the moral compasses they need to act safely and be good citizens when fathers aren't around.

For generative parents, fathering becomes a lifelong task, and doesn't stop when children become adults, leave home and start families of their own. It is in this stage that men take on mentoring work, passing on the wisdom gained from their experiences to the next generation so that they don't repeat the same mistakes that they have made. Fathering never stops. It changes with the development of your children.

This Father's Day, while enjoying the accolades and attention that will come your way consider the generational impact you are having on your kids.

Your lasting fathering legacy will be determined by the character you display; the way you live your life and how you relate to your family. Those are attributes that you can continue to work on over the coming twelve months.

You will find more information about generative fathering in my book A Man's guide to raising kids at www.parentingideas.com.au
